

Rhonda Hanson

RHONDA HANSON is a bit of a recluse whose music is autobiographical and comes from a long friendship with "Father". From an earlier album, "Healing Of The Heart" a video of the single "If I Could Die" was produced by Matt Crouch and regularly aired on TBN's "Real Videos". Rhonda has traveled over the country, spending many years in street ministry, singing and speaking at women's conferences and in concert. One of her most memorable and personally rewarding times of ministry came with an invitation to Keith and Melody Green's "Last Days Ministries", where she led worship, gave concerts and lectured on songwriting. Her most current project is "Words And Music", in which she was joined by friends and pioneers of Christian music such as Kelly Willard and Harlan

Rogers. A compilation of remixed titles from the earlier project "Healing Of The Heart" and some new songs are now available in Rhonda's recently released project "The Friend Of God". Rhonda hides out in the Tennessee woods, skillfully avoiding Nashville. In addition to songwriting, she is the author of the novel, "Father's Choice" and is presently at work on the third book in the "Father" series.

To learn more about Rhonda, read her full biography at <http://www.RhondaHanson.Com>.